9. RecruitMilitary Résumé Writing Service

Finding a job is about marketing and selling yourself.

It's possible you've heard that résumés are no longer necessary in this technologically-driven world. Don't listen to this advice. As a matter of fact, when we poll our clients who use our database to search for candidates and ask them what makes them decide to call a candidate, they say two things:

1. If there isn't a résumé saved along with the profile the candidate builds, I'm not looking at the candidate.
2. If there is a résumé posted and it is filled with spelling and grammatical errors, I'm less likely to call the candidate.

Don't leave yourself short by having a poor marketing message. Let our résumé experts help you craft your message.

"I was considering paying another service provider four and half times what I paid RecruitMilitary; I saved a ton of bucks and received a final product that was worth way more than the price paid."

—Daryl, Air Force Veteran
